Good advice for growing older

At Elderflower some of the issues we can help you with are: -

- Finding out easily whether you can save or invest your money without fear of it all being used to pay for your care in old age.
- Considering a tax planning Will to save your loved ones becoming liable to a huge inheritance tax bill after your death.
- Probate/administration of estates.
- Advising about Lasting Powers of Attorney (which enable someone you trust to look after your finances if you lose mental capacity).
- Buying, selling and transferring commercial and residential property.
- Equity release.
- Setting up a Trust (this can be particularly important if you have a disabled child).
- Resolving disputes over inheritances.
- Divorce.
- Contact with children and grandchildren.
- Court of Protection issues.
- Financial abuse of the elderly.
- Employment law.
- Preparing your business for exit.
- Bereavement Counselling.

Good advice for growing older

Our aim is to make planning for retirement as easy and stress free as possible.

The firms who are part of Elderflower have worked together for some time;

Elderflower recognises the strong working relationships that already exist between Ridley & Hall Solicitors, Bell & Buxton Solicitors, Shore Stewart Solicitors, Smith Craven Accountants and UKWM Financial Advisers.

We also work closely with a bereavement counsellor whose help can be invaluable to clients after the death of a loved one.

We are very happy to chat to you about our service. If you are involved in a community group our professional advisers are happy to give talks free of charge.
